Our Father which art in heaven, hallowed be thy name; our help through weary years and silent tears, in ages past and our hope for years to come. We come before you this day in the humblest manner we know—with sincerity, meekness, and humility. We approach you today seeking guidance, seeking wisdom, and seeking your presence. We first say thank you for being our God. We thank you for how you have never abandoned us, but always provided for us.

We pray today for these legislators that have sacrificed their time for the good of our state. We ask, Father, that you bless each and every one of them as they seek to do business that will affect our state. We ask that you would bless their homes and their families. Father, I ask that you bless the governor of this great state and guide him as he leads us.

We pray this day not just for our state but for our country. We pray for the protection and guidance of our president, Barack Obama, and those in the senate and in Congress. We pray for our men and women that protect this country at home and abroad.

Father, we pray for the recovery of so many that have been affected by the tragedies that have taken place in our country. We pray for the entire city of Boston. We pray for those families that have suffered loss of life and limb. Then, O God, we pray for the town of West, Texas. We ask, O God, that you would bring comfort and you would bring peace to that small town. As they struggle with coping with loss, we ask that you be a very present help in their time of trouble as they move forward in rebuilding their lives and their town. Thank you, God, for always hearing our prayers. Continue to hear our prayer, O Lord, incline thy ear to us and grant us thy peace. In the name of Jesus, the Christ, I pray. Amen.

REPRESENTATIVE PERRY: Representative Gonzalez, it's my understanding, and just for clarification, so people who are tied to Texas Tech, this is agreed upon—all stakeholders, everybody's favorable for it, everybody's excited about it and glad that you're carrying this legislation—but I've had several people ask how is Lubbock, or how is Tech feeling about this, and from all indications, they're 100 percent supportive.

REPRESENTATIVE N. GONZALEZ: That's a very good question, thank you, Representative Perry. Yes, as a matter of fact, this bill is an agreed-upon bill. CSHB 11 ON SECOND READING

(by Ritter, Larson, P. King, Pitts, Creighton, et al.)

CSHB 11, A bill to be entitled An Act relating to the appropriation of money from the economic stabilization fund to finance certain water-related projects.

CSHB 11 was read second time earlier today and was postponed until this time.

CSHB 11 - REMARKS

REPRESENTATIVE TAYLOR: Just so I understand the legislation that you laid out in HB 4, is it your intention that HB 4 is a sinking fund? That the balance declines over time and ultimately goes away, or is it a revolving fund that will be here for the future?

REPRESENTATIVE RITTER: Mr. Taylor, this bill is not HB 4, this is HB 11. This is about taking money out of the rainy day fund, sir.

TAYLOR: Sure, but this funds that, so I think that is important, right? I mean, that's what you just talked about. That was your whole layout, right—was this bill funds that? So I'm just trying to understand what that is—that is a revolving fund that intends to be here for the future?

RITTER: It is a revolving fund, sir.

TAYLOR: Is it intended to be here for the future?

RITTER: I'm sorry, Van. Say that again?

TAYLOR: Is the SWIFT—designed by you, written by you, authored by you, voted on in this house—designed to be a revolving fund that will be here in the future?

RITTER: Yes, it is designed to be a revolving fund.

TAYLOR: Is it designed to be here in the future?

RITTER: Yes.

REPRESENTATIVE WALLE: Just a few questions, particularly on the HRO report. It mentions the debt service and loan repayment programs and non-self-supporting general revenue assistance. If we're not going to—if we don't pass the $2 billion appropriation for this or the tapping of this fund, in the long term would it also be issuing more debt to the state budget?

RITTER: Only if we—

WALLE: Do not pass it?

RITTER: Allow—or appropriate GR related to those projects. What I mean is, if the bonding is one part of the package, kind of like tied into a credit line for us, but if we do not appropriate money for the water development board and the state water plan then they can't go do these projects because they don't have the cash to either do the incentives on an interest rate buy down, or a state participation, or any one of those type things. But, if we don't appropriate money, it's not going to happen at all.

WALLE: It's not going to happen. The only other issue would be by appropriating, or having the ability to have access to these $2 billion, are we incurring more debt in the future for future Texans with the passage of this?

RITTER: Not any more than if we weren't. They're tied together and if the $2 billion that we are talking about doing is the seed capital for the infrastructure bank—and the reason we're doing that is because for the last 15, 16 years, the legislature never stands up and funds water planning. We've been, since SB 1 in 1997, trying to find a secured source of funding in order to get these projects done. We haven't done that. We've not done our job. This is about getting $2 billion as one-time seed capital, sticking it into an infrastructure bank that revolves—that will allow the state to participate in $27 billion worth of projects that will end up being $53 billion worth of projects in all of our neighborhoods. That's what it's about folks. It's not magic.

WALLE: And this bill would not exceed $6 billion, is that my understanding? That you would have access to—

RITTER: This bill is about moving $2 billion from the rainy day fund to the SWIFT infrastructure bank, sir.

WALLE: Okay, so we're creating a whole new entity with this SWIFT mechanism to be able to finance some of these—actually the 50-plus billion dollars in water assistance that we need, or water projects?

RITTER: Yes, to do the state's participation part. In the state water plan, all the regions have come together and said we need about 600 and I can't remember how many projects that total in the pro forma of about $53 billion and what they have asked for the state to do and the help equates to $27 billion. So, this is about how do we find, over the critical path of the next 50 years, $27 billion? The way we're going to do it is a one-time seed capital investment of $2 billion into an infrastructure bank that revolves, tying in with either our general obligations bonds that the authority we were given in 2011—November of 2011, and possibly and additionally revenue bonds.

WALLE: And these—the Texas Treasury Safekeeping Trust Company, this entity, or this new bank, who are they going to be accountable to? To the legislature or to—how do we control—to keep them accountable to the taxpayers?

RITTER: If you'll remember from HB 4, the safekeeping trust is an entity that is—I can't remember, Mr. Walle, how long it's actually been around, but they're, if I remember right, they actually have an investment portfolio for the State of Texas of about $53 billion which includes the asbestos fund, different things like that. So, they've been doing this for some time, they do an extremely good job, they answer or they work with—through the comptroller's office, as they do with the other plans that they are managing.

REPRESENTATIVE CAPRIGLIONE: Mr. Chairman, I wanted to ask, when we talk about the $2 billion, we call that a corpus, that's the basic, the principle amount that we start with our investment—after two years, how much of that corpus has gone away?

RITTER: That really depends on how much they've loaned out.

CAPRIGLIONE: Okay, well I've seen some models, I saw one model today—so just in some of the baseline models, approximately how much of the corpus is down?

RITTER: If you have the models, you can look. I don't have them here, and I can't remember, sir.

CAPRIGLIONE: Okay. I think I saw about $160 million for two years. I looked, and at about 10 years out, it's about $500 million. Do you think that's about within the ballpark, $500 million of the $2 billion of the corpus?

RITTER: In 10 years, I think it's going to be much more than that. I think that's what the modeling shows, but what I believe is going to happen when we develop this mechanism, that you're going to see these projects coming to the water development board with loan agreements to be looked at—I think it gets a real kick in the you-know-what.

CAPRIGLIONE: So you don't think the modeling is accurate?

RITTER: I think the modeling is pretty accurate for what we know the four corners of the state water plan are today. And whatever it is you do, your management through the modeling of what your state water plan is, what your requests are, the process is not like you're going to the banks and asking for a 90-day loan or an auto loan or such. This is a process that these entities are going to be working with the water development board for quite some time, and the modeling is what the modeling is. And in order to—you're managing your investment strategy portfolio, you're managing your loan portfolio, and it all ties together, and the modeling helps you determine the type of, how much you're going to be loaning. If you get a couple of years where you get a lot more loans out quickly, then that modeling, you would assume, would change somewhat.

CAPRIGLIONE: Okay. Now if I remember right, in the model it showed that there was about a 20 percent loan loss rate? If I recall correctly, I'm not sure if I do, was there a 20 percent loss loan rate in that model? And for the members, a loan loss rate is what percentage of the loans that are given out that are expected to not be paid back.

RITTER: I believe in some of the modeling there was 20 percent, up to a 1.2 ratio, which that'd be correct, I think in some others—I think we did 500 different models, Bill, or something like that? Yes.

CAPRIGLIONE: So basically, if the 20 percent loan loss rate in the model is accurate, one out of every five loans won't pay back, is that what that means, for the members to know that?

RITTER: That means 20 percent of the loan portfolio—

CAPRIGLIONE: Mr. Chairman, I have another question. So let's say we go down the path of—

RITTER: Do you want me to finish answering about the loan loss?

CAPRIGLIONE: Yeah, sure.

RITTER: Okay, the water development board in Texas has never had a loan loss. We did figure a percentage of loan loss in that because that's just smart, good conservative thinking. Again, I want to reiterate that, look, these are captive customers; these are the City of Dallas, the City of Houston, different river authorities, the Trinity River Authority, all these entities. These are entities that—it's not like a regular banking business, or in my company where I might possibly be loaning some money to somebody.

CAPRIGLIONE: You're absolutely right, so that would actually be my next question, which is if the $2 billion is invested over the period of time, how much more debt, including cities, municipalities, state, and so on, does this incur at the highest maximum? In other words, the goal of this is to go and pay for some PIC, to pay for some deferred payments, so as the $2 billion goes in, we're going to be incurring more and more debt—whether that's city, municipalities, and so on—so I was wondering if you could let me know how much total debt this project will incur at its highest point.

RITTER: That depends on the overall projects. Right now, if you're talking about everything, I would say the number would be the $53 billion, or close to it, statewide with every entity.

CAPRIGLIONE: Okay, so just to recap, because I want to make sure I understand, the goal of this bill is to—besides investing in projects, which are worthwhile—but the net result is about $53 billion in debt. We've estimated 20 percent of the loans going into default, and we think that will only put in about $300 million over the next few years. I wanted to ask another question, because I've heard this asked a few different ways, but I'd like to get your opinion, or the chair's—

RITTER: You're asking about local debt, and everything?

CAPRIGLIONE: That's right, total debt.

RITTER: I don't have that number.

CAPRIGLIONE: Okay, so you didn't include local debt in that $50 billion, or you did?

RITTER: No, the $53 billion—what I told you was the total projected cost of all the projects in the four corners of the state water plan today.

CAPRIGLIONE: Okay, now I have another question, which is, when we talk about the dollars in the rainy day fund—and I'm going through an article that I'm trying to remember from December or January of this year or last year—dollars that are used from the rainy day fund, do we believe today that those dollars count toward the spending cap? As it is now, without making any changes to laws or statutes, or amendments in this or future—

RITTER: Are you asking me if dollars today, in HB 11, count against the spending cap?

CAPRIGLIONE: Well, no, I guess, because HB 11 might have some terminology—I guess what I'm asking is if dollars come out of the rainy day fund into a bank that then goes and buys everything from pipe fitting, to sewers, to electricity and so on, does that count as spending money or not spending money?

RITTER: I count it as an investment. We have an investment, and we're making loans to basically quasi-governmental entities ourselves throughout the State of Texas.

CAPRIGLIONE: So then, I guess, help me remember, what did I read in January or December, that the LBB had met, and that it was their opinion that it was spending—

RITTER: I don't know, you'd need to go look it up.

CAPRIGLIONE: Okay, so right now, what you're saying is that these dollars, no matter where it is, do not count towards spending, is that right? It doesn't count towards the spending cap?

RITTER: You're asking me if these dollars count towards the spending cap—my personal opinion? I do not think they do. I think that this is cash that we are putting into an investment strategy, sir, and it should not be counted against the spending cap.

CAPRIGLIONE: And I respect and appreciate your opinion. Is there an official opinion? I mean, is there—

RITTER: I would imagine, when we get closer to the conference committee on the budget and such, that that will be told to us.

CAPRIGLIONE: So, we have to vote for it before we find out whether it's worth it, before it counts or not?

RITTER: Well yeah, it's not all finished.

CAPRIGLIONE: All right, thank you.

Amendment No. 2

Representative Martinez Fischer offered the following amendment to Amendment No. 1:

Amend Amendment No. 1 by Ritter to CSHB 11 (house committee printing) by adding the following appropriately numbered item to the amendment and renumbering subsequent items accordingly:

(____) Add the following appropriately numbered SECTION to the bill and renumber subsequent SECTIONS of the bill accordingly:

SECTION _____. The amount appropriated by this Act from the general revenue fund is in addition to the other amounts proposed to be appropriated from the general revenue fund by Articles II, III, and IX, SB 1, Acts of the 83rd Legislature, Regular Session, 2013, as of April 8, 2013. If the actual amount proposed to be appropriated from the general revenue fund by any of those articles of the bill as finally enacted by the legislature is less than the proposed amount as of April 8, 2013, the appropriation from the general revenue fund under this Act has no effect, notwithstanding the effective date provision of this Act.

Amendment No. 1 - Point of Order

Representative S. Turner raised a point of order against further consideration of Amendment No. 1 under Rule 8, Section 3 of the House Rules on the grounds that Amendment No. 1 violates the one-subject rule.

The chair overruled the point of order and submitted the following statement:

Representative S. Turner raised a point of order against further consideration of Amendment No. 1 to CSHB 11 under Rule 8, Section 3 of the House Rules. Because Representative Turner's complaint goes not to the bill, but rather to the amendment offered, it is presumed that he was also arguing under Rule 11, Section 2 of the House Rules. Representative S. Turner argued that CSHB 11 is a narrow one-subject bill that appropriates money from the economic stabilization fund to fund water. Because the bill has a single subject, the point of order under Rule 8, Section 3 of the House Rules is overruled. He asserts that Amendment No. 1 violates Rule 8, Section 3 and Rule 11, Section 2 of the House Rules by allowing an option to fund water using general revenue. That point of order is also respectfully overruled.

The amendment's provision that water could be funded from general revenue on the condition that the bill did not receive the requisite votes to use economic stabilization funds was incidental to carrying out CSHB 11's purpose of funding water. Because the amendment was consistent with this single subject and did not impermissibly expand the bill by providing an alternative funding source, other than the economic stabilization fund, that was incidental to the main proposition of the bill, it would not have introduced a distinct subject into the bill and, therefore, was not out of order. See 45 H.J. Reg. 458 (1937).

Representative Creighton moved to table Amendment No. 2.

Amendment No. 3

Representative Dutton offered the following amendment to Amendment No. 1:

Amend Floor Amendment No. 1 to CSHB 11 (house committee printing) by Ritter on page 2 of the amendment, immediately following the period on line 1, by adding:

In making the proportional reductions in appropriations as provided by this subsection, each item of appropriation related to public education shall be excluded.

AMENDMENT NO. 3 - REMARKS

REPRESENTATIVE DUTTON: The discussion here has centered around whether or not we are going to have a disproportionate reduction in, for example, public education. The fact of the matter, members, is that for every dollar we spend in the budget, we spend on average 38 cents of it on public education. That happens to be the largest expenditure in the budget. And so, if we are going to apply these cuts to the budget, clearly then a fairly significant cut will be had again in public education. What this amendment does is, it doesn't stop the cuts, it just simply says that public education will be excluded from any of those cuts. Now, I was sitting here thinking, you know, the elephant in the room—and that's no pun intended—is the fact that there is not the ability to get the number of votes in order to tap into the rainy day fund. And the reason is that there are people here on this house floor who believe that it's just as important to take money and put it into public education as it is to fund the water project.

There is something worse than having water problems. One of them is having ignorance problems. And so if we really want to make this work, rather than doing it backward we would do it forward, and that is add education to the ability to take money away from the rainy day fund, instead of just limiting it, at this point, to water. Now, being from Houston, I can tell you that we sure have our share of issues related to water. We sometimes get all of our annual rainfall almost in one weekend, for example, like we did this past weekend. But we have some other problems too, related to public education, that we don't need to sit in this chamber and assume that because we cannot get the votes for water that means we ought to have an attack on public education. This amendment prohibits and prevents that.

REPRESENTATIVE S. TURNER: Tell me again, Representative Dutton, exactly what is your amendment is doing?

DUTTON: My amendment—the way I understand the amendment by Mr. Creighton is that, to the extent that they don't get the votes to take the money out of the rainy day fund, to place into this bill they will take it from GR, essentially, and proportionately apply all the cuts to all the items in the discretionary part of the budget. What this amendment does, it says, "Wait a minute, we can still do that, but we're not going to touch public education."

S. TURNER: So, the effect of your amendment is to make sure that the money that we have invested in public education stays in public education.

DUTTON: Absolutely. And the reason for that I think is, you know, we don't need to pit water against education, which is what this amendment does—Mr. Creighton's amendment does. It pits—our choice is to solve our water problems and throws that over into creating problems for public education. I think that's wrong headed, I think what we ought to do is—if we're going to take money from the rainy day fund to do water, we certainly ought to recognize there are some other issues that are equally as important as water, like education, and be prepared to take the money from there as well. But when we start to pit water against education, I think we do ourselves a disservice and we have to be a lot smarter than that.

S. TURNER: Representative Dutton, I want to—so that I'm clear, when we started this session, we had underfunded education from what we did last session?

DUTTON: Yes. Correct.

S. TURNER: And up to this point in time, let's say we put the $2.5 billion back in education on Friday—

DUTTON: And then another $500 million.

S. TURNER: But there's still 160,000 kids that are in the school system from last time that we have not provided adequate funding for, correct?

DUTTON: Absolutely, and that's the reason why I don't want us to go back on that again by adopting the Creighton amendment without my amendment to his amendment.

S. TURNER: So is the effect of your amendment is to say that whatever they have to do after the session, that people cannot reduce the monies that we have put into public schools in this session?

DUTTON: Absolutely. And certainly not to have it be the vehicle by which—we reduce it to pay for the water problem, because then we're essentially trading one problem for another one and trying to pit two entities that both need our immediate attention to the point where we're going to, somehow or another, fix one problem and create a bigger hole in another entity in this state. I just think we're smarter than that, Mr. Turner.

S. TURNER: So, in essence your amendment is saying that if we meant what we did when we put money into public schools, your amendment will protect that investment in our public schools.

DUTTON: At least for now. And I think what we have to do now is we have to protect that, because we've had a long fight back. We recognized that the cuts in public education have immediate effects on the way Texas' future is impacted. I mean, there's no question about that. We realized that, we experienced that, which is why I think when most of us came here at the start of the session, we had in mind to start to put back the money that we had taken away from public education. And here we are today, though, going back again on that commitment by deciding that, wait a minute, we're going to now rob the children of Texas to pay for water in Texas.

S. TURNER: I want to thank you for bringing the amendment that would protect the funding that we've given to public schools.

DUTTON: Well, thank you Mr. Turner. I just don't believe that the answer to our water problem lies in solving it by robbing the children of Texas from an education they truly deserve. I don't think that gets us anywhere. I mean, in my way of thinking, I just don't see how we could leave here this session, go home, and tell people we made Texas a better place because we took care of the water problem, but in the process what we did is we stole the money from the children of Texas to pay for it. And so that's why I offer this amendment, Mr. Speaker and members.

REPRESENTATIVE CREIGHTON: Nobody's robbed anybody here. If there's a commitment to the children of Texas and public schools in funding to the tune of $5 billion we've already put back into public schools, if that commitment rings true, and if that commitment is united across this floor, then the decision today is to vote for the bill, and to acknowledge the rainy day fund—the ESF—is the direction you prioritize as you protect public school funding to make sure we solve long-term water supply for the state. Because those very kids, their parents, and their families, and our communities are dependent on the decision we make today.

S. TURNER: You're opposed to the amendment by Representative Dutton that would protect our funding we've already made to public schools?

CREIGHTON: I'm opposed to picking and choosing, instead of an across-the-board small reduction that would take the place of your decision to prevent the rainy day fund from being used for this purpose.

S. TURNER: Representative Creighton, did you vote for the appropriations bill that left the floor?

CREIGHTON: I did, and I'll have my chance to make my final decision on the actual budget when it comes back to the floor, including the public education dollars that are in it. But we can't determine that today.

S. TURNER: Was it the intention of your vote that the $2.5 billion for public schools to stay in the bill? Was that your intent?

CREIGHTON: When a docket and a calendar are set, we make our decisions, and my intention today on the bill that's before us—and, again, we have to restrict our debate to the matter at hand and the measure that's before us on this floor.

S. TURNER: I understand, and do you think—

CREIGHTON: And my decision is to commit to water today, and we can all do that by getting behind Chairman Ritter.

S. TURNER: Do you believe that water, on the floor of this house today, has a greater precedence or higher priority than the financial support we have given to our schools this session?

CREIGHTON: I believe that they are coupled, and we cannot consider either in a vacuum.

S. TURNER: Do you believe that water is the number one, that water has a higher priority over the monies we have invested in our schools in this legislative session?

CREIGHTON: I believe—

S. TURNER: Yes or no?

CREIGHTON: I believe that they are coupled together.

S. TURNER: Do you believe that we should take monies away, that we have appropriated in this legislative session, from our schools to give to water?

CREIGHTON: I believe that if we don't commit to water and long-term solutions, we will kill our tax base. We will negatively affect our communities, our schools, and our funding to our schools is tied to all of that, and it is irrefutable that those can be separated.

S. TURNER: I got that, Representative Creighton. I'm just asking for a simple answer. Is it your belief that we should take money away from the schools—the monies that we have appropriated in this legislative session—and give that money to water? Yes or no? I'm not trying to trick you. I'm just trying to find out what you're asking us to do.

CREIGHTON: Chairman Turner, I support Chairman Ritter's bill to use the ESF.

S. TURNER: Do you believe—

CREIGHTON: So that is my number one goal.

S. TURNER: Do you believe that we have put too much money in schools in this legislative session? Do you believe that we have over-funded the schools?

CREIGHTON: I believe that the $5 billion we've restored, and the budget that we've voted on and we've sent to be negotiated with the senate will come back, and I will have a final decision on what I think and what I don't think the commitment should be on each driver or each article in that budget. But, today, we are talking about an opportunity, and this opportunity on making a decision to fund our water plan is paramount, and our schools are dependent upon that.

S. TURNER: Now, our schools are certainly dependent on us being, providing the support to them. The question that I'm asking you—are the dollars that we've appropriated for our schools, should those dollars remain with our schools?

CREIGHTON: The $55 billion we've put into education is a strong and firm commitment. The money that we've restored is a heavy commitment—

S. TURNER: Now Representative Creighton, I don't know what history you're rewriting, but in the last legislative session, we've reduced $5.4 billion, and this legislative session we've started with two and we added another 2.5. We then added another $500 million that is going on this biennium; not on the next.

CREIGHTON: Correct.

S. TURNER: Roughly, by my math, we are still close to $6 billion down if you just want to look at the numbers. Now, if you want to talk numbers, I'll talk numbers with you all day long, but this rhetorical rhetoric that we've overfunded schools is just not factual.

CREIGHTON: I never said we overfunded. I said, the same number you did. Two, 2.5, and $500 million is $5 billion. And I've referenced that's where we're at—

S. TURNER: And I would contend to you that we are still short. Now, having said that, is it your position, and those who will be voting for your amendment, that we have put too much money in education, and we need to take back some of the money we voted on for education and put it into water? Yes or no?

CREIGHTON: Chairman Turner, it's a no, because my goal with my amendment would have specifically mentioned public education for the reduction if that would've been my goal.

S. TURNER: You recognize, when you're asking people to table this amendment, that you're saying to LBB that you can reduce the monies that we have allocated, over-allocated to our schools—you can reduce the money to our schools in order to give it to water? You know that's what you're saying when you're asking people to table this amendment?

CREIGHTON: That's not what I'm saying.

S. TURNER: No, no, no—that's probably what you don't want people to think you're saying, but the reality is, when you ask people to table Representative Dutton's amendment, you are authorizing—you are giving the LBB the authority—to reduce the dollars to public schools and give those dollars to water.

CREIGHTON: That's not correct.

S. TURNER: Then why are you seeking to table representative Dutton's amendment? And Representative Dutton's amendment simply says that whatever money we've committed to education, that money cannot be touched after we leave in this legislative session.

CREIGHTON: My amendment does not pick winners and losers—

S. TURNER: You're picking water.

CREIGHTON: The amendment that Chairman Dutton has placed before us does. And so, because I do not want to affect the troopers and any other driver within the budget that could be affected in an impartial way, my amendment is drafted to be impartial. Picking winners and losers and filing amendments to exclude every article of our budget, everyone knows the goal there is to gut my amendment.

S. TURNER: Representative Creighton—

CREIGHTON: No, that is not what—

S. TURNER: Representative Creighton, when you say you're not picking winners or losers, your amendment says, number one, water first, everything else is second. By definition, your amendment has picked the winner, and everybody else stands to lose. Now, I'm not the smartest cookie in town, but I've got enough common street sense to know that your amendment is intended to put water first, school children second, and everybody else falling in line. Now, I'm not crazy, Representative Creighton, so let's just be clear, it's the intent of your amendment to find whatever money you need for water, even if it's at the expense of our public school children.

CREIGHTON: Chairman Turner, if you'll vote with me on my amendment and you'll vote for Chairman Ritter on the bill, you will invalidate my amendment. You will show your commitment to use the rainy day fund, protecting what you see are the current funding levels in the budget for public schools, and you and I will win together. So, vote for my amendment. Vote for Chairman Ritter on the bill, and protect our kids and our schools.

S. TURNER: Representative Creighton, I can't support anything when water wins and school children lose. That is not an even proposition.

DUTTON: You know, last session, when we were here, there were a number of us who argued that we ought not to make the significant cuts in public education. We, of course, wanted to go to the rainy day fund. There were a number of amendments designed to do that—to help fund public education. And we were told no, we couldn't do that. We had to protect the sanctity of the rainy day fund. Fast-forward to today. All of a sudden water, now, has taken a priority in this legislative body, such that we are now prepared to take the money out of the pockets of school kids in Texas. We've already given them the money. Now, what Mr. Creighton's amendment does is says, we are going to take it back. Now, most of you are familiar with the adage about robbing Peter to pay Paul, but I don't think most of you can stand robbing little children in Texas to pay for water problems in Texas. That would be a travesty if we did that, members, and like I said, I think we're smarter collectively, I think we're smarter than we were last session. At least we were, up until the time that we started to approach this problem by trying to take away from the children in Texas, prohibit them from getting a quality education because we think water is more important.

You know, one of my friends used to say the problem with the legislature is that they can't figure out how to function in a crisis, that when they have five children, and three poor ones, they get rid of two kids. That's what they're doing today. I mean, that's what they're suggesting today, and somehow or another, public education doesn't matter as much as water does. I believe that it does, members. I believe, irrespective of all the issues related to water, and I know water is one of the driving forces for an economic engine in this state, but you know what, we can solve the water problem and still not be a state that people don't want to come to. And the reason they won't want to come, because we haven't had the whatever-it-takes to properly fund public education, and we need to. And so, I ask you to vote for this amendment. And I know Mr. Creighton's amendment was crafted because they don't think they can get the votes to take the money out of the rainy day fund. Well, I don't think that means that you ought to take the easy road out, and say, well, we're going to take it out of the little children of Texas' pocket, so they no longer get the quality education they need.

REPRESENTATIVE VILLARREAL: Chairman Dutton, there's been a lot of talk about water, as if, if this state does not make this investment, there's going to be no investment in water. On the other hand, we know that is not true.

DUTTON: Right.

VILLARREAL: There are local government entities that—in fact, what this fund that Chairman Ritter is creating is intended to incentivize them—to issue debt, to raise property taxes, to create the infrastructure—and we will help them to some extent, but they will carry most of the weight. And that is a very different kind of partnership than what we have with our schools. Is that not right?

DUTTON: Well, I agree with you, I just don't—

VILLARREAL: Is it not accurate that our school districts are at the ceiling? There is no capacity at the local level?

DUTTON: They depend almost solely on you and I, and this legislature.

VILLARREAL: And while our constitution requires us to cover educating our children, when it comes to water utilities, that has historically been something that is carried by our local communities, is that not right?

DUTTON: Absolutely, and Mr. Villarreal, you know, if the members in this house want to be first in water and last in education—because that's where we're headed if you don't vote for my amendment. We're headed to being, maybe we'll be first in water, but I don't think the headlines are going to be too kind to us if we're last in education. And, so, while we sit here today and pit these two entities—both of which are important—we pit them against each other, members. I will tell you, Texas being 49th, having a 49th ranking in public education funding—

REPRESENTATIVE BRANCH: Wouldn't you agree Mr. Dutton, your comments earlier were a little—to me you said, last session we had some people wanting to take funds from the rainy day fund for school operations?

DUTTON: That's correct.

BRANCH: And at this time, some people want to take money from the rainy day fund for water?

DUTTON: Yes, and the same people who didn't want to do it last session are the people who want to do it this session.

BRANCH: But to be fair, wouldn't you agree that there is a difference? One was for operations of schools, and this one, at least you can make the argument, that this is moving it over to a separate fund for a capital investment? We're not trying to pay water operations out of this budget. We're trying to make a capital investment, and the argument last time, as good as it might have been, was for operations—ongoing operations of schools.

DUTTON: Chairman Branch, as far as I'm concerned, that's a distinction without a difference. Let me tell you why—

BRANCH: Well, for me it's an important distinction and I just want to make sure you acknowledge it, and I'm very thankful for you acknowledging the difference.

DUTTON: I understand the argument. I understand that we could make this argument, but somehow or another, we don't really know what the projects are going to be done on the water side either. We don't know if they are going to be capital improvement projects that require us to come back here and re-fund them and keep putting money in them. There's nothing on here that says that. And while I respect your argument, Chairman Branch, I just don't agree that I can divorce the two from today's vote, because I think it is equally as important to make sure that we properly fund public education in this state as it is to have some sort of structural water issues before us. And so, with that, members, I would ask you to vote no on the motion to table, and let's make sure we don't rob the schoolchildren in Texas to pay for water—there's got to be a better way.

CSHB 11 - POINT OF ORDER

Representative Y. Davis raised a point of order against further consideration of CSHB 11 under Rule 6, Section 7 and Rule 6, Section 17 of the House Rules on the grounds that further action was taken on the bill after it had been placed on the calendar.

The chair overruled the point of order and submitted the following statement:

Representative Y. Davis raised a point of order against further consideration of CSHB 11 under Rule 6, Section 7 and Rule 6, Section 17 of the House Rules, asserting that the Committee on Calendars lacked authority to move the bill from the General State Calendar to the Major State Calendar. The point of order is respectfully overruled.

Representative Y. Davis notes that CSHB 11 was initially placed on the General State Calendar. Two days later, the Committee on Calendars reconsidered the vote by which the bill was placed on the calendar, then voted to place CSHB 11 on the Major State Calendar. Representative Y. Davis asserts that after placing the bill on the General State Calendar, the Committee on Calendars lacked authority to take any further action on the bill without first moving to recommit the bill to the committee.

The sections of Rule 6 on which Representative Y. Davis relies do not prohibit the Committee on Calendars from reconsidering its vote to place a bill on a calendar and moving that bill to a different appropriate calendar. Rule 6, Section 7 of the House Rules lists the calendars that compose the system of calendars. Rule 6, Section 17 of the House Rules provides that once a bill is placed on its appropriate calendar, the bill retains its position relative to other bills on the calendar such that any bills added later must be added later on the calendar. Section 17 further provides that if a bill is recommitted or withdrawn from the calendar, it relinquishes its position on the calendar and is removed from the calendar. Although recommitment and withdrawal of a bill would result in the bill losing its place on the calendar, recommitment and withdrawal are not the only conditions for moving a bill from the calendar. Further, it is clear that the Committee on Calendars may continue to act on a bill after it has been set on a calendar. See Rule 6, Section 16(f) of the House Rules (Committee on Calendars may adopt and publish a calendar rule to a bill already set on the calendar).

It is also clear the Committee on Calendars may correct or revise calendars. The Committee on Calendars may likewise exercise its wide discretion to move bills from one type of calendar to another. E.g., HB 10, (83rd R.S., 2013); SB 650, (82nd R.S., 2011); HB 21, HB 102, HB 298, HB 1327, HB 1437, HB 1453, HB 1477, HB 1659, HB 1759, HB 1800, HB 2103, HB 2169, HB 2270, HB 2324, HB 2436, HB 2356, HB 2436, HB 2474, HB 2481, HB 2571, HB 2633, HB 2635, HB 2705, HB 2887, HB 2909, HB 2913, HB 3019, HB 3054, HB 3059, HB 3075, HB 3339, HB 3428, HB 3471, HB 3512, HB 3544, HB 3575, HB 3576, (75th R.S., 1997); see Rule 6, Section 25 of the House Rules (stating the intent "of the calendar system to give the Committee on Calendars wide discretion to insure adequate consideration by the house of important legislation").

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A message from the senate was received at this time (see the addendum to the daily journal, Messages from the Senate, Message No. 2).

(Speaker in the chair)

Amendment No. 1 - Point of Order

Representative Giddings raised a point of order against further consideration of Amendment No. 1 under Article III, Section 30 of the Texas Constitution on the grounds that the amendment would change the original purpose of the bill.

The speaker overruled the point of order and submitted the following statement:

Representative Giddings raised a point of order against further consideration of CSHB 11 pursuant to Article III, Section 30 of the Texas Constitution, asserting that adding Amendment No. 1 to the bill would change its original purpose. The point of order is respectfully overruled.

CSHB 11 appropriates money from the economic stabilization fund to fund water. Amendment No. 1 would fund water using general revenue if the bill did not receive the requisite votes to use money from the economic stabilization fund. The chair notes that Amendment No. 1 had not been adopted at the time when Representative Giddings raised her point of order. However, assuming the point had been raised after adoption of the amendment, the chair finds that Amendment No. 1's provision of an alternate method to fund water would not have constituted a change in purpose in violation of Article III, Section 30. Instead, this alternate funding was consistent with the bill's purpose of funding the state water implementation fund for Texas.

CSHB 11 - POINT OF ORDER

Representative S. Turner raised a point of order against further consideration of CSHB 11 under Rule 8, Section 21 of the House Rules on the grounds that the general appropriations bill has not yet been certified by the comptroller.

The speaker sustained the point of order and submitted the following statement:

Representative S. Turner raised a point of order against further consideration of CSHB 11 and the amendment under consideration pursuant to Rule 8, Section 21 of the House Rules. The point of order is sustained.

Representative S. Turner has directed the chair to house precedent in which a point of order under Rule 8, Section 21(a) of the House Rules was sustained. The chair also reviewed house precedent in which a point of order under Rule 8, Section 21(a) of the House Rules was overruled. See 80 H.J. Reg. 1475-76 (2007). Having reviewed the specific facts surrounding this bill and amendment and the rule, the chair agrees that the point of order should be sustained and CSHB 11 should be returned to the Committee on Appropriations.

CSHB 11 was returned to the Committee on Appropriations.
